SMALL STORY

MERCHANTS

After years traveling the world for wine it was clear to us that some of the most interesting stories were yet to be told on Australian shores.

Like us, this curated selection of small, family owned producers believe that it's not just a possibility, but a responsibility to provide a high quality, premium product without leaving a heavy footprint. This commitment to sustainability goes beyond purely production, with a considered approach also to materials, packaging, community and people.

We have the privilege of sharing the stories of these small and remarkable brands.

Our hand-picked list includes premium biodynamic, organic and responsibly produced wines from Australia and around the world.

Located in Tamar Valley, Tasmania 41 degrees South and 50 metres above sea level; twenty hectares of vines were established in 1998. This premium Certified Organic vineyard comprises predominantly Pinot Noir and Chardonnay with smaller plantings of Riesling and Pinot Gris. The resulting cool climate wines have naturally higher acid, with a focus on the expression of fruit and texture.

Small Wonder is humble yet aspirational. Our contribution is small, but significant; mindful of our relationships with our communities and our long-term impact on the planet.

PIERRE MIGNON CHAMPAGNE

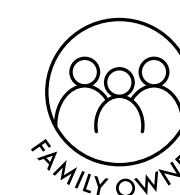

FRANCE

Maison Pierre Mignon is located in Le Breuil, an area recognized for the quality of its Pinot Meunier, in the Marne Valley, France. Following a long line of winegrowers, Maison Pierre Mignon has been making exceptional Champagnes for five generations, with the purest respect for tradition while embracing innovation.

Devoted to the land and passionate about wine, Jean-Charles Mignon creates the Maison's Champagnes and regularly produces characterful new Cuvées.

In the 1950s Charles Roger Duval acquired the Monopole de Sainte Eulalie with an established 28 hectare vineyard planted by the Cluney Abbey monks. South-east-south-west facing, from 190m to more than 300m above sea level, the subsoil is composed of Jurassic slopes, established on Kimmeridgian limestone with a high concentration of oyster fossils "Ostrea Virgula".

Edouard Duval (Roger's grandson) took over the reins and since 2015 has been crafting internationally acclaimed Champagnes in his unique style. "Our mission is to make wines that express their terroir, without artifice, convinced that the creation of a great Champagne wine begins in the vineyard. All our Champagnes are made exclusively from grapes coming from our Domaine, where we have been practicing sustainable viticulture for more than 20 years, certified HVE3 and VDC."

SAINT JULIEN D'AILLE
PROVENCE

FRANCE

Chateau Saint Julien D'Aille sits on the banks of the Aille river in the heart of Côtes de Provence. The Chateau dates back to Ancient Rome, with several generations of wine growers nurturing the vineyard since 1973. The 80 hectares of sustainably managed vines are planted on sandy clay soil speckled with quartz pebbles.

In 1999, the Bernard Fleury family took over the Estate. "The secret of our wines lies in the quality of our grapes. We farm sustainably: throughout the seasons, we prune, till the land, prune buds and top our vines with the greatest care."

Borgoluce is a 1000-hectare estate in the hills of the Province of Treviso, between Venice and the Dolomites. Ninni and Caterina di Collalto, together with their mother Trinidad and Caterina’s husband, Lodovico Giustiniani, form the founding nucleus from which Borgoluce originated. “We cultivate respect for the land” is not just a slogan; it is a way of being that goes beyond their agricultural production.

Preserving the equilibrium of both the landscape and the environment is the basis of their philosophy, producing wine and food products. They employ the principles of organic and biodynamic farming, paying close attention to water and waste and utilising clean energy.

“There’s a softening creamy texture and the fruit intensity gives a sensation of sweetness in addition to the actual sweetness so the overall effect is medium dry.”

Among the terraced vineyards of Valtellina was born “La Spia” (The Spy), a name linked to the homonymous rocky ridge located in the Sassella DOCG sub-area, a sighting and control post dating back to the Grisons domination. In 1962 the property passed to the Rigamonti family who used it for vineyard cultivation, Nebbiolo variety, Chiavennasca biotype. Today La Spia works 4.5 hectares scattered throughout the Valtellina area, producing over 25,000 bottles a year.

La Spia is a young and dynamic cellar, which combines the passion and care of the past with technique and innovation. Their philosophy allows the creation of new Rhaetian gems, such as 100% Nebbiolo vinified and aged in wood, 100% Classic Method Nebbiolo, and the “Castelàsc” project - a blend of Nebbiolo, Moscato Giallo Trentino and Sauvignon-Blanc..

Halfway between Florence and Siena, in the heart of the Chianti Classico region, lies the small village of Panzano. Just below the village church, at 450m above sea level, is the Fattoria Le Fonti. It extends over 15 hectares (37 acres); 9 hectares (23 acres) are vineyards and the rest olive groves.

“The roots of a great wine are found in the vineyard and we strive to keep them in balance by farming sustainably (organic). Thanks to our relative small size we can follow the production with great care: only the best grapes arrive in the cellar and only the best selections are bottled in the end. Since 1994 all the vineyards have been replanted with selected rootstocks and plants adapted to our area, elevation and soil type. The vineyards are farmed organically to save the integrity of the environment. We strongly believe that a great wine starts in the vineyard and thus take meticulous care of our vines and select only the best grapes for the cellar.” - Schmitt-Vitali Family

Le Fonti’s vineyards and olive groves are certified organic through ICEA Organisation (the Italian Association for Organic Agriculture)

“Even as a young child I remember hearing the conversations about vines and wine, and I can recall those Octobers when we went right from school to harvesting the grapes. This world, marked by the changing of the seasons, has always fascinated me and the desire slowly grew in me to become part of it, to contribute to it, to learn how to listen to the vineyard and to the land, to bring forth from them my own wines.

I started making wine in 1984, my focus was on local varietals such as Corvina, Rondinella and Garganega. Everything that I do in the vineyard is aimed at respecting and preserving the unique and incomparable qualities that I find only in my wines.” - Matilde Poggi, Owner and Winemaker.

“The fruit has the woody tartness and acerbity of hawthorn berries, and yet, tucked in there is a kiss of woodland-strawberry sweetness and charm. Gentle-tug tannins, like a child’s small hand, pulling you towards something they want to show you.”

BATTENFELD-SPANIER
RHEINHESSEN

GERMANY

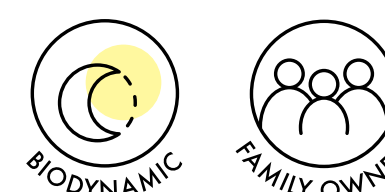

“When I founded Battenfeld-Spanier at the age of 20, restoring soil vitality was a primary goal. The grape vine is an interpreter of the relationship between light and earth. I could do little to influence the light, therefore I focused on the soil. The conversion of my vineyards in 1993 to ecological cultivation was a natural and logical step. In my mind, wine should directly communicate an impression of the soil characteristics of southern Wonnegau: marled chalk, chalk pebbles and solid limestone. One should be able to experience and taste the rock.”

Weingut Salwey in Oberrotweil is proud of its history as a classic family-run estate. Yet that tradition only tells part of the story. Konrad is the third generation of Salwey to run the winery, which focuses on Pinot varieties traditional to the Kaiserstuhl region. The estate is renowned for its fine vineyards, including three "Erste Lagen": Oberrotweiler Henkenberg, Eichberg and Kirchberg. Weingut Salwey is a member of the Verband der Deutschen Prädikatsweingüter (VDP).

"The wines are all fermented dry ... and still very low in alcohol, puristically clear and precise with a pronounced acidity, which is very reminiscent of Burgundy." Eichelmann, 2018

"The Salwey estate has always been an absolute specialist in Pinot, be it Blanc, Gris or Noir."

“Our range is reduced to the essentials with the Burgundy varieties and the Gutedel. Our winemaking methods have changed little over time. Spontaneous fermentation, extended time on lees, minimal sulphur use and unfiltered wines are not new fads or trends for us, but lived family tradition.” Johannes and Christoph Schneider

Weingut Schneider hold six hectares in the Weiler Schlipf, the most south-westerly single vineyard site in Germany, directly on the Swiss border. This Weiler Schlipf is in danger of disappearing, the soil consisting of impermeable sandstone slabs covered by a layer of limestone and clay. This steep slope is slowly sliding (in local dialect: “schlipft”) down.

“The brothers know how to create the Pinot classics like their father Claus, but with an additional focus on freshness and precision, while at the same time creating experimental wines that derive their originality from good craftsmanship.”

We, Hans-Bert Espe from Osterode and Silke Wolf from Paderborn, studied in Geisenheim because of our love for special wine. Knowledge-expanding stays all over the world have shaped our philosophy, which forms the basis for us today. Our vineyards are located in Kenzingen and Malterdingen. We carefully care for them by hand in order to harvest healthy grapes. We pick by hand bring the grapes quickly to our 'shelter'. Once there, the grapes are processed in the most gentle way. We do without pumps and filters. Our pump is gravity and patience replaces the filter.

The vineyards of Hans-Bert and Silke are north of the Kaiserstuhl. Although only about thirty minutes north, their location enjoys a much cooler microclimate thanks to their proximity to the Black Forest. In addition, the volcanic soils of the Kaiserstuhl give way to limestone and loess. The result is Pinot Noirs with lower alcohols and higher acidities.

"Real energy and crackling fruit and texture. Really refreshing."

Located in Klingenberg am Main, between Odenwald and Spessart, the former winery of the city of Klingenberg (today Weingut Steintal) stands for sustainable and organic viticulture in harmony with nature. In the listed terrace steep locations, where already in the 13th century the first vines were set. Our main focus is on Pinot Noir, growing 90% Pinot Noir on a total of 11 ha in the three municipalities of Klingenberg, Großheubach and Bürgstadt.

“It was one of the great success stories of German Pinot Noir when the young talent Benedikt Baltes took over the winery of the city of Klingenberg am Main and immediately caused a huge sensation with his first bottlings. The style was extremely unusual for Germany: released early, almost a bit extremist, correspondingly low in alcohol, pushing the soil expression, cool, racy and strongly reductive in youth. Baltes has since moved to the Ahr and the winery renamed Steintal, however Baltes has remained with the company as an oenological consultant and the rest of the team is now continuing Steintal unchanged in the same style.” Loberbergs, 2021

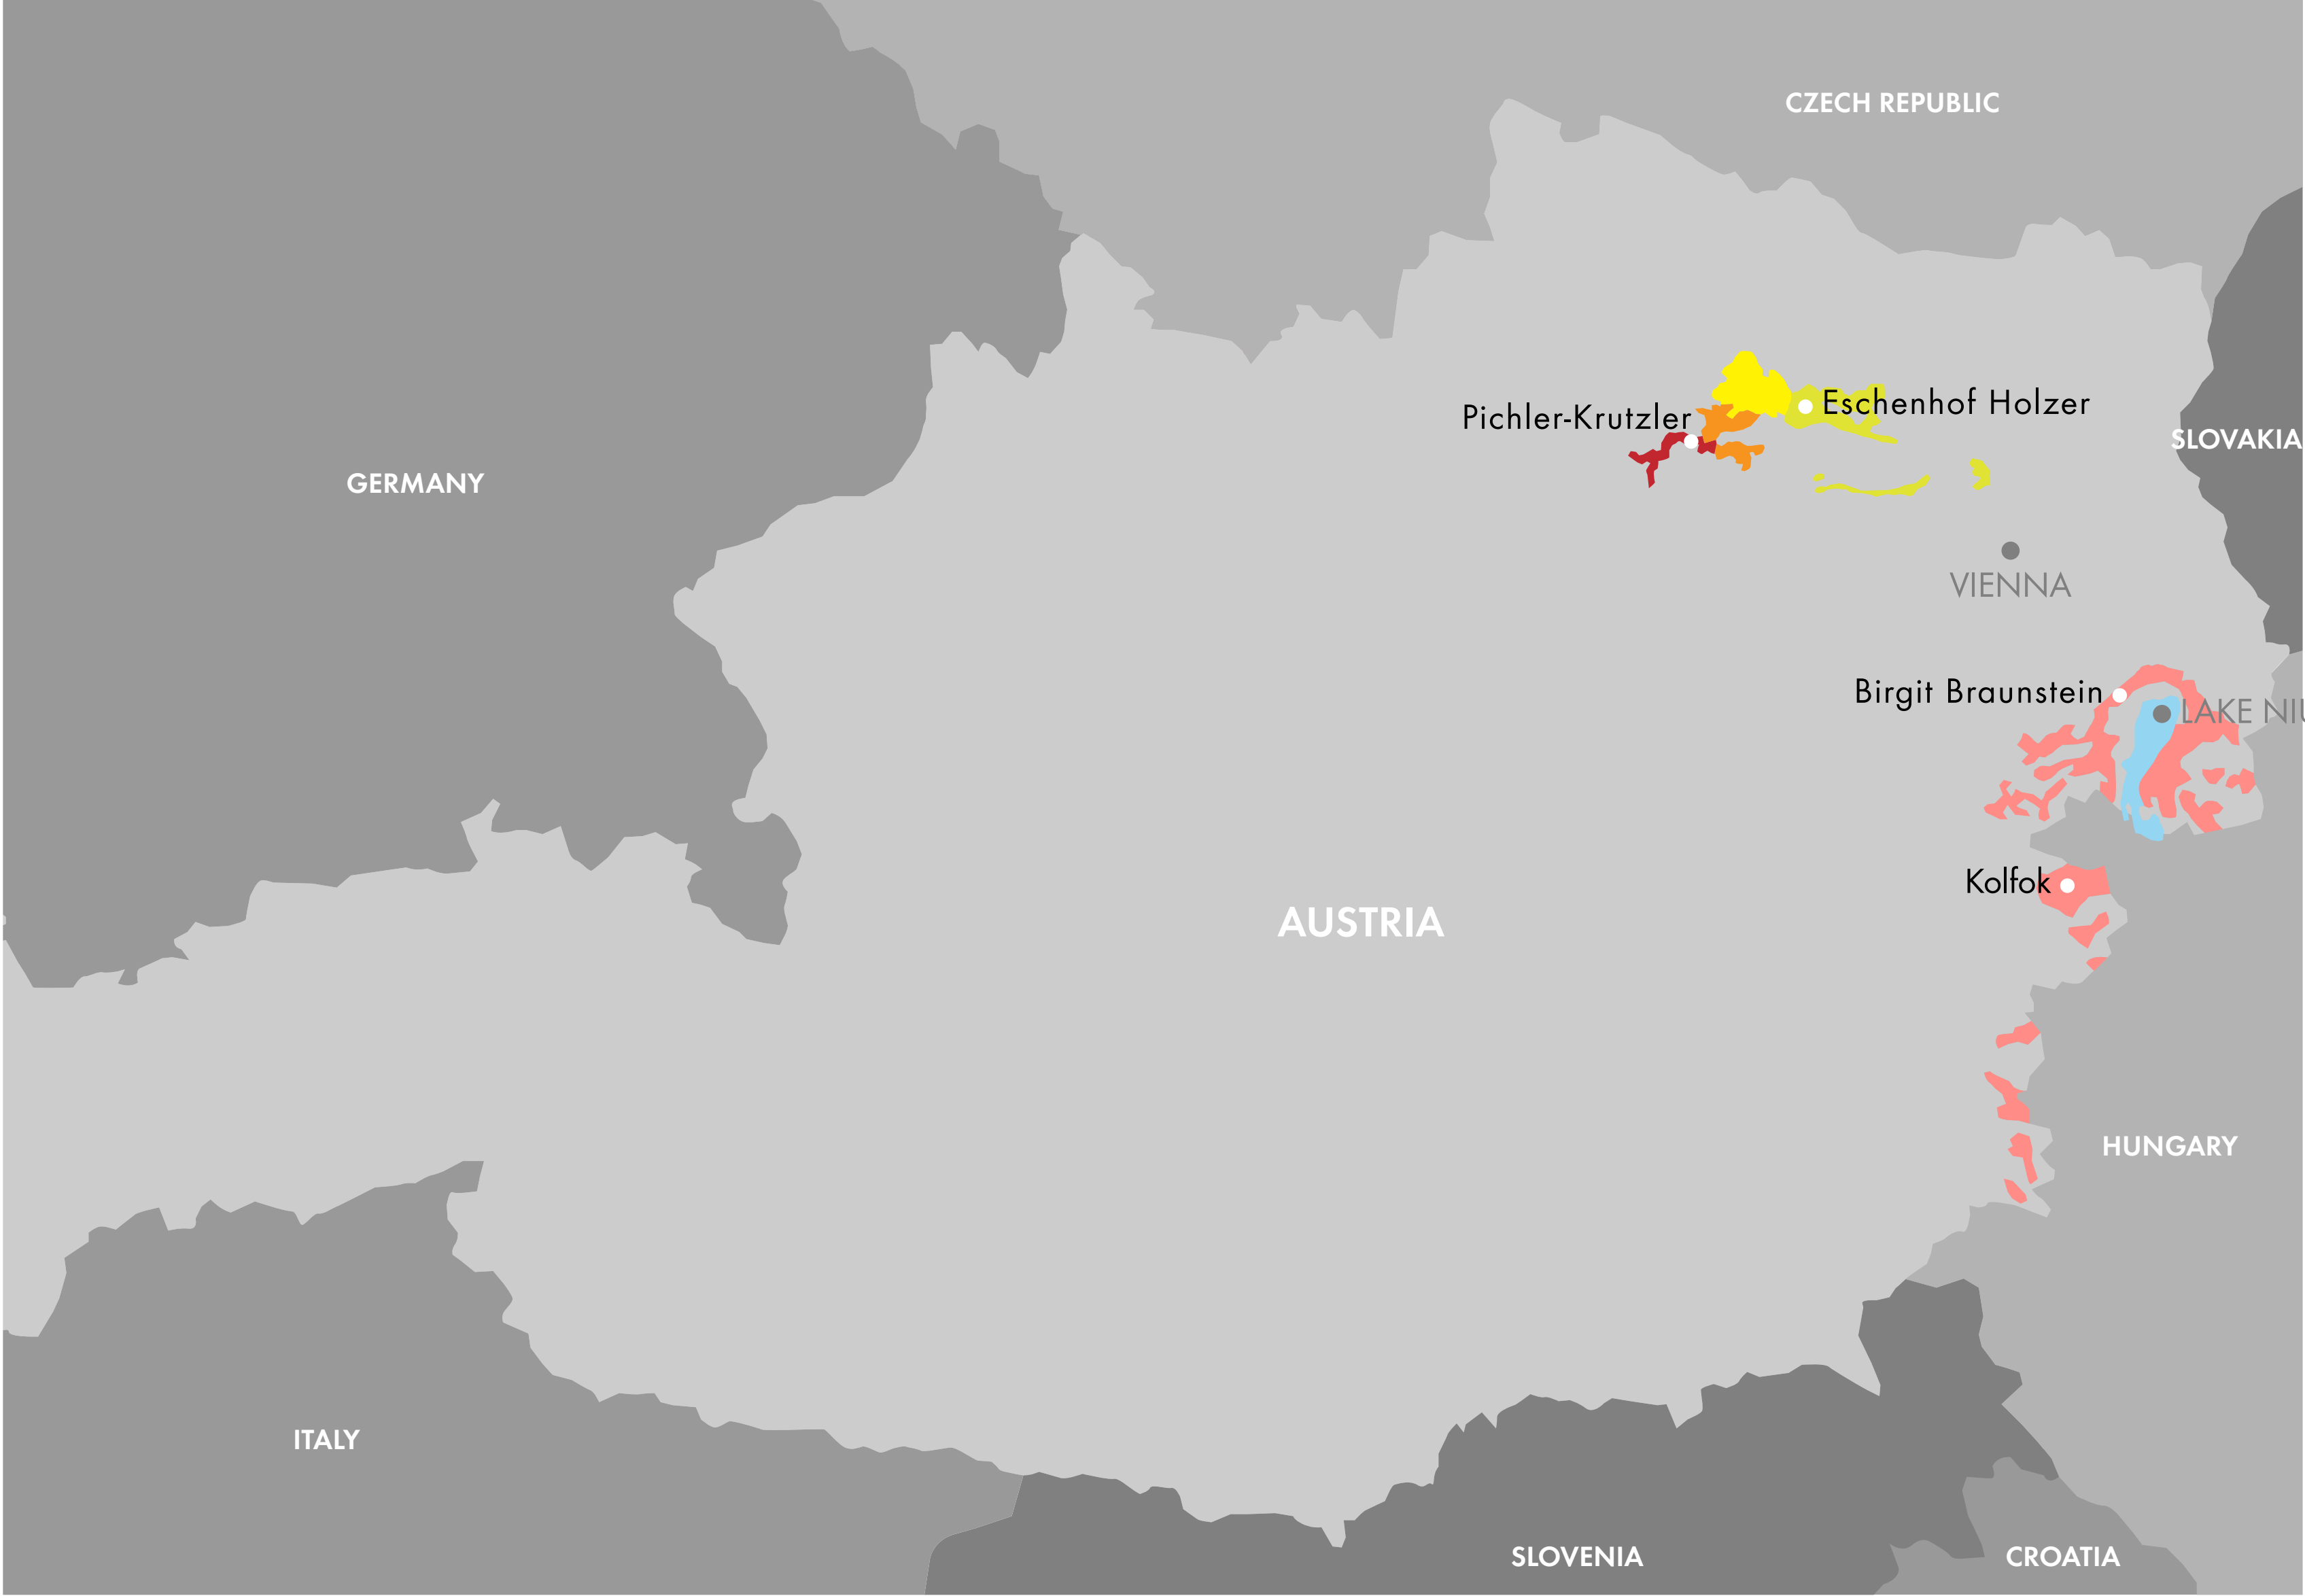

“Toe-tapping energy. Mouth-watering refreshment, finishing sharp and precise.”

Birgit Braunstein is a multi-generational, Biodynamic Winery in the Leithaberg DAC region Austria, 40km south-east of Vienna by Neusiedlersee Lake. This UNESCO heritage listed area has been a meeting place of different cultures for eight millennia and offers a unique and diverse local ecosystem.

“I got to know biodynamics at Château La Mondotte in Bordeaux, France. I saw the difference in the vineyards there and in our area here in Austria there was a big need for change. I took Biodynamics step by step and I saw the soils had more humus and the wines were much brighter. As we just rent the land from our grandchildren so we have to think ahead, as farmers are also landscapers. We are also responsible for our employees, their consciousness influences our vines and therefore also our wines. Having a good working environment is as much about the plants and the soil as the people. The two go hand in hand.” Birgit Brunasten

“This has immense charm and pure, long, peppery fruit.”

The Eschenhof Holzer winery is located in Großriedenthal, in the Wagram wine region, northwest of Vienna. Arnold Holzer took over the winery from his parents in 2010 at the age of 23, but since he was young(er!) he has helped at the winery and familiarised himself with the handed-down knowledge of viticulture.

On the 16 hectare estate Arnold draws on the unique bounty of nature; with a great deal of creativity, a distinctive style and a sense for delicious creations! Arnold has a focus on Grüner Veltliner, with his wines enriched with the typical regional features, but also offering a completely unique profile. The loess soil drifted here in multiple layers during the last ice age lending valuable mineral composition to the vineyards.

“Broad and crisp at the same time, with subtle peppery notes on the nose and palate.”

The word Kolfok has its origins in a regional dialect and describes a person, critical of common thoughts - an unconventional thinker. Winemaker and Kolfok in-chief Stefan Wellanschitz was born into wine making at the family's estate in Neckenmarkt, a winery that dates back to the early 19th century, to a time when this part of Burgenland was still Hungarian and not Austrian. While still also working at the family's estate, Stefan decided to launch his own wines back in 2013, wines that are a clear deviation from the family's more traditional style, towards natural wine making and a purist low-tech approach that would highlight soils and micro-climate, aka terroir.

Says Stefan: "I want to show those exceptional conditions in my wines. That's why I work natural both in the vineyards and in the cellar. To prevent mono culture the vines are growing organically together with other herbs and plants. In the cellar it's very easy - the wine are pressed without the use of pumps into local oak barrels which can be from 600 liters (Halbstueck) to 1200 liters (Stueck), this is where the wine stays without filtering, moving or even sulfuring. At the optimum time they are bottled unfiltered with a minimal addition of sulfur."

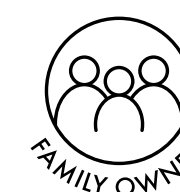

Pichler-Krutzler from Austria's famed Wachau region is Erich Krutzler and his wife Elisabeth Pichler-Krutzler, the son-in-law and daughter of F.X. Pichler. Erich is a talented winemaker in his own right, having inherited a Blaufränkisch vineyard in Südburgenland where he was an award winning winemaker for several years. Because Erich has a vineyard of Blaufränkisch in the Südburgenland, they are not members of Vinea Wachau Nobilis Districtus which gives Erich greater flexibility in Pichler-Krutzler's vinification.

Their sustainable approach to viticulture ensures the gently tilled soils of their 10 hectares of vines are free from insecticides and use only organic manure as fertilizer. In the vinification, indigenous yeasts are used for cuvées, except in an occasional year for the spring-bottled wines. For Supperin, Loibenberg, Pfaffenberg, Kellerberg, fermentation is done with indigenous yeasts in wood foudre from Stockinger of varying sizes up to 1500l, between 1 and 8 years, no toast.

"Yellow fruit, deep earthy spice softened through a creamy, supple texture. Cool, juicy and balanced."

The boutique Balassa winery was established in 2005 by Istvan Balassa in the historic Tokaj wine region. Right from the beginning, Istvan, a perfectionist, was determined to produce only the highest-quality wines possible by maximising the potential of each vintage. It begins with growing grapes of an outstanding quality and applying a rigorous approach to cultivation. Each wine is then created using artisanal wine-making methods, highlighting the unique characteristics of the grape, the vineyard and the terroir.

“Very appley and exciting on the nose. Super tangy and lively and rich.”
